Student Report — Milkshake Year 3

Comments

Milkshake is enthusiastic, confident, and keen to use English in the classroom. She has shown strong participation in warm-up games and classroom discussions. She already demonstrates a solid understanding of basic phonics and has a good vocabulary base. We are currently concentrating on speaking activities related to everyday situations, which Milkshake is engaging with positively.

Speaking & Listening

In English, Milkshake's learning focus has been on vocabulary development, pronunciation, basic sentence structures, and conversation. These skills are practiced through repetition and roleplay, allowing her to build confidence in real-world communication. She is eager to speak and actively engages in class discussions. She demonstrates a growing ability to use new vocabulary appropriately. Moving forward, Milkshake is encouraged to speak more in full sentences to build fluency and increase her overall word count. Repeating key phrases and vocabulary will also support the development of strong communication habits.

Reading & Phonics

In reading and phonics, Milkshake has been working on decoding words with more than one syllable and improving recognition of common sight words. She displays good foundational phonics skills and is becoming a more confident reader. She is willing to read aloud and engage in group reading activities. To continue progressing, Milkshake should focus on improving her reading accuracy and fluency, particularly with more complex words. Continued phonics practice at home would be beneficial.

Grammar & Writing

Milkshake's current grammar and writing focus has been on understanding and using verbs, nouns, adjectives, and pronouns, as well as developing clear sentence structure. She is beginning to demonstrate awareness of grammatical elements and can identify parts of speech within sentences. Writing tasks are completed with enthusiasm, and she shows interest in building her writing skills. To improve further, Milkshake should continue reviewing grammar rules and applying them in her written work, aiming for accuracy and variety in sentence construction.

Personal Expression & Conversation

Milkshake has also been encouraged to express herself by talking about her hobbies, interests, and everyday experiences. This approach helps to build confidence in speaking and supports fluency in more natural, conversational English. She responds very well to this area, showing high levels of enthusiasm and confidence. She is not shy to speak and often engages in lively discussions. To make further progress, Milkshake is encouraged to stay focused during open discussions and to use new vocabulary in context whenever possible.

Overall Strengths

Milkshake enjoys studying and brings a lot of positive energy to every session. She participates actively and confidently, showing strong interest in reading, speaking, and completing classroom activities. Her punctuality and readiness to learn contribute to a productive classroom environment. She is consistently responsive to instructions and is quick to adapt to new activities, often completing tasks with great success.

Recommendations for Improvement

Milkshake should continue practicing speaking in full sentences, as this will help her develop fluency and improve her spoken English. It is important that she remains focused during class activities and puts extra effort into understanding the material, especially during unit reviews. She should continue participating actively in class, maintain her positive start to the course, and keep using new vocabulary regularly. Previewing upcoming lessons and practicing language in real-life situations will also support steady progress. Repeating vocabulary and sentence structures will help reinforce patterns and build strong communication skills.
